ROPES ARE READY FOR HORSE THIEVES

Virginia Farmers Organize White Cap Band to Stop Barn Looting.

WARNING TO THE 'RUSTLERS'

Short Shrift for Anyone Caught With Another Man's Steed in Fairfax County.

Woe betide any wayfarer who falls into the hands of the "white caps" over in Fairfax county, Va. The "white caps" are a well organized and orderly set, with a firm determina-tion to lengthen the neck of any and all horse thieves who are caught within the bounds of Fairfax county. In Alexandria county the "white caps" are just as strong and determined. They have openly declared their intention of taking the law into their own hands bemake a specialty of leading horseflesh astray does not seem to have had the desired effect.

Won't Tell Names.

'Rustlers," as the horse thleves e called, swooped down on the farmers' stables early in August and did a land office business until the aid of the local authorities was enlisted and Major Sylvester's detectives succeeded in getting on their trail and running them to earth. Not-withstanding the fact that William hompson, the police say, has confessed "rustlers" suspected of carrying away all the horses reported stolen e refused to divulge the names of othmembers of the gang and is now in s far the local police have recovered five horses, two buggles, one wagon, two sets of harness and a surrey, all of which Thompson is said to have all of which Thompson is said to have confessed he stole. The prisoner was taken to Fairfax Court House, arraigned and held for the grand jury. After Thompson was haled into court and held for the grand jury, there was a let-up in the horse stealing, but last week it broke out again in both Fairfax and Alexandria counties and the ire of the farmers was aroused. Prominent residents of the county rose up in arms and cried "string up the horse thieves." And string them up they say they will if they get a line on a "rustler."

Troubles in plenty of course accompanied them. Hills—some of them all but insurmountable—were, it seemed, far more common than plains. One of them, Crow Hill by name, on the way to Hereford, was declared by the country folk to be unclimable. However, they companied them to camp on their fields for the night, so, as gipsies and vans of all kinds are warned off even the commons, they sometimes had to go many miles before they found a farme willing to allow them to camp on the incommons, they sometimes had to go many miles before they found a farme for the night, so, as gipsies and vans of all kinds are warned off even the commons, they sometimes had to go many miles before they found a farme willing to allow them to camp on the rot many miles before they sometimes had to go many miles before the might have sometimes had to go many miles before the might had to go many miles before the

This is anent the fact that there are a great many persons under indictment in the District, the charges against whom have not been pressed on account of other business occupying the attention of the court.

Under direction of District Attorney Baker, Assistant District Attorney Harvey Given has been making up a little list of cases which have been on the dockets for some time, but for some reason or other have not been disposed of in court. In all of these cases the person accused is out on bail.
